History of Hickory, N. C.

HISTORICAL

"Hickory Tavern" was the antebellum name by which Hickory was known many years after the war. Hickory Tavern was a cabin built of logs about fifty years ago, in the midst of a dense virgin forest of large hickory, oak and chestnut trees. A large hickory tree stood in front of the tavern, from which it derived its name.

Through this forest and by Hickory Tavern ran the old stage-coach line, and here a pause was made to change horses and feed "man and beast" as the sign over the door read. This Tavern stood on the site where the new Hotel Huffy is being erected.

The settlement was composed largely of "Pennsylvania Dutch" afterwards "Catawba Dutch," from Catawba County in which it is located, but in reality they were pure German or of that origin, who settled first in Germantown, Pennsylvania and vicinity.

Catawba County, of which Hickory is the chief town, derived its name from the tribe of Indians which formerly occupied the district. These Indians were seen and remembered by an old resident, Rebecca Barger, who recently died at the age of over 100 years. She also remembered seeing wild animals in abundance such as wolves, bears, deer, etc., along the Catawba River three miles distant from Hickory.

Catawba County was originally a part of Fredell County. It has contributed largely to the interesting history of this country, in matters of heroes and patriotism during both the Revolutionary and Civil wars.

LOCATION, CLIMATE, HEALTH, NATURAL ADVANTAGES

Located in the very heart of the Piedmont section, Hickory enjoys the distinction of being the gateway to the mountains of the famous Western North Carolina health-resort section; approaching from the Atlantic slope, to the west, on the Southern Railway, is Asheville, 83 miles distant; to the east, Charlotte, an equal distance; to the north, Blowing Rock, 40 miles, reached by the C. & N. W. Railway to Lenoir and thence by stage-coach over a splendid turnpike.

With an altitude of 1,146 ft. and a climate that is ideal, pure water, perfect sewerage system, electric lights, many manufacturing plants, two railroads, adequate banking houses, excellent public and private schools and three large colleges, Hickory can well boast of being the most healthful and progressive city of its size in the State. Indeed Hickory is the one place in the State which can truly claim "climate cure" for many health-seekers who have come here suffering especially with weak lungs—and that without the aid of sanatorium treatment. The climate is so mild and conditions so favorable that such sufferers sleep "in the open" with impunity at any and all times of the year.

Hickory's population, including the suburbs of West Hickory, Long View, Highland Brookford, is conservatively estimated at 15,000. It has increased 36 per cent during the past six years.

Situated in the midst of a progressive farming country, which is fast developing into profitable truck-farming, Hickory has the advantage of an inexhaustible vegetable and produce supply fresh from the producer. Fruit is grown nearby in large quantities, while cattle and sheep raised in the adjoining mountains furnish the most delicious meats.

COMMERCIAL, INDUSTRIAL, SURROUNDINGS

With such conditions and natural advantages we have already won the reputation of having the finest health resort in North Carolina. And with the advent of cheap and ample hydro-electric power, which is already assured and near at hand, Hickory is destined to be a manufacturing center. In fact the way is paved, numerous manufacturing enterprises of various kind being operated in and near Hickory to advantage and profit even with steam power.

Although no material advancements were made during the recent panic, our mills and manufactories continued to operate, and business in general, by reason of a substantial surrounding country and sound banking houses, held up remarkably well. Not a dollar of script was issued by Hickory banks, and conditions were such that confidence in the community was unshaken, while even larger places on every side were thrown into utter confusion.

The outlook for the present year is very promising. Leaving all other considerations out, Hickory is bound to grow, because the country around it is being rapidly developed. The question of good roads is receiving consideration, farming is being conducted along scientific lines and the farmer is awakening to the possibilities of truck-farming and diversified crops.

Being the center of the Piedmont section, with a health record unsurpassed, a climate that is just right, good railroad facilities and abundant cheap labor, it is the ambition and sensible determination of our progressive citizens to make Hickory a mecca for manufacturers.

PROGRESS

Among other new enterprises and subjects receiving the attention of the Hickory Chamber of Commerce, most of which it is reasonably certain of securing during the year 1909 are:

Tubercular Sanatorium.

City Hall.

Electric Railway.

Line to Blowing Rock.

Another Cotton Mill.

Structural Iron Manufactory.

Y. M. C. A. Building.

Convention Hall.

Postal Telegraph.

Wireless Telegraph Station.

Meeting of Commercial Secretaries of the Carolinas.

Meeting of Western North Carolina Methodist Episcopal Conference.

Many other manufacturing plants will be established here upon the introduction of cheap power by which many more will be induced.

FINALLY

Lumber and building material are cheap and plentiful. Large quantities of timber may be secured nearby. Manufacturing sites accessible to the railroads may be secured for a reasonable consideration.

Hickory, in short, is in the saddle and another year will mark the most important epoch of her commercial and industrial history. Outside capital and men with brains and public spirit are invited to investigate, with a view of locating here and enjoying the many natural advantages with which we are blessed.

Hickory Chamber of Commerce,

J. W. Blackwelder, Sec.-Treas
